Challenge notes – notifying users they have been 'liked'

The business have provided feedback they would like users to be notified that they have been 'liked', but not if they have been 'unliked'.   They would like the notification to include the users image and the toast to be a clickable link to take them to the users profile page.   This task has been handed to you.

1. Think about reusability.   Have we created anything that can be refactored to accommodate this toast and potentially other toasts that we may want to create in future?

2. Think about the information we need to include in the toast and where we can get this info from.